

TWO OR MORE

AFTER SCHOOL CLUBS GIVE STUDENTS MORE TIME AT SCHOOL

During fall, many clubs gather throughout the weeks. Many students come together over mutual interests, and this has created many opportunities for people around school.

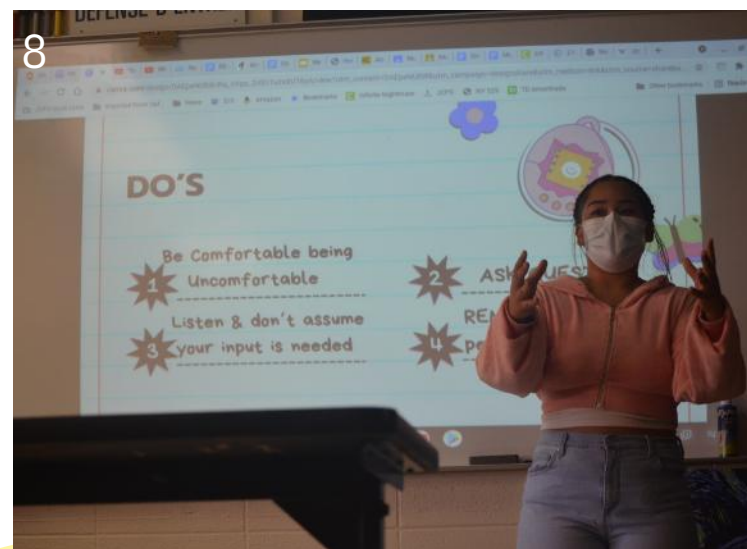

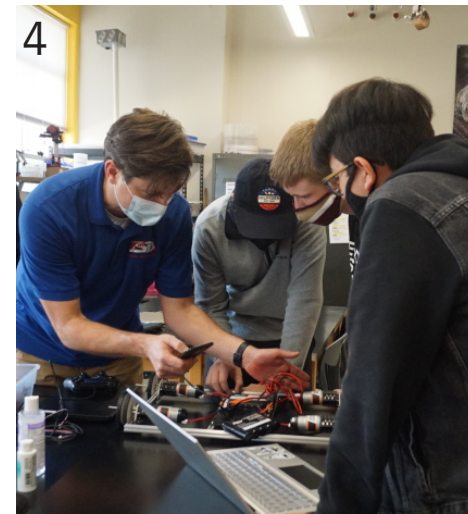

One club is the Ping Pong team. They meet every Wednesday outside the cafeteria.

"We're just doing it for fun. On Wednesdays, we don't really have anything to do, so we just come here and it's a lot of fun," said Stella Regalo, 9. "It's non-competitive. It's just a club where you're not pressured to do anything."

Many enjoy the laid back environment of clubs. Jackson Woods, a sophomore who's a member of the 'Video Game Club' shares an interesting story.

"It started out as 'Smash Bros Club' but after winter break we re-branded to 'Video Game Club,' to attract new members," said Jackson Woods, 9.

Clubs definitely give students the opportunity to seek out an activity after school, and hang out with friends. Although it's only Fall, we can see an incline in the club gatherings, and students can't wait to see and do more.

1. Carmen Everson, 11, right, prepares to receive the ball from Cooper Cox, 11, left.

2. Leonardo Gonzalez, 12, left, uses their paddle to pass the ball back to Elizabeth Massey, 11, right. Photo by Audrey Hamilton

3. Cyrus Williams, 9, has the ball passed to him. Photo by Audrey Hamilton

4. Mr. Dizdarevic works with Jonas Persful, 10, Gunner Aberli, 10, and Nicolas Ferero Sanchez, 10, in Robotics Club. Pictured from left to right.

5. Lillian Holmes, 12, performs arts and crafts in the Hispanic Student Union Club.

6. Adrian McLain, 12, left, observes, as Aiden Hall, 12, right, rolls a die in Dungeons and Dragons Club.

7. Logan Walser, 10, and Jackson Woods, 10, playing Mario Kart in Video Game Club.

8. Emily Pabon, 12, gives a presentation in Black Student Union.

9. Luke Jeziorski, 10, left, Vivienne Yan, 10, middle, and Kaitlyn Brandy, 10, right, participate as a team in Quick Recall. Photo by Audrey Hamilton

10. Beca Rangel, 12, gives a presentation in Hispanic Student Union.