

SOMEWHAT SUMMER

It all begins in the summer. This is a time for the people. Students live different lives during the summer. Whether that be a part time job, a late night hang-out, vacation, or a staycation, we all do things unique to us. Summer means no deadlines, no homework, and no grades.

With all this being said, we did spend this summer a little different. Although we weren't put under a strict quarantine like summer of '20, we still had some restrictions, but like most things, we found a way. We held virtual concerts, and in person concerts, for the first time in a while. We also had sports and tailgating. Lastly, we got to safely travel again.

Summer may look different to everyone, but one thing we all share is returning back to school...

- 1) Maddie Goulder, 12, and Annie Backert, 12, enjoy the summer sun with a park hangout.
- 2) Aggie O'Brian, 11, and friend Tatum go paddle boarding in Michigan
- 3) Juniors Avery Bogan, Inanna Delaney, and Jenna Eads watch a thrilling home game at our very own Bats stadium.
- 4) Audrey Hamilton, 11, enjoys her summer at Cannon Beach, in Oregon.
- 5) Sophia Schindler, 12, enjoys the summer waves.
- 6) Sophie Winstead, 10, enjoys her summer with her friends.
- 7) T Moore, 11, anticipates the first day of school.
